

Alpine Medical Emergency Policy: 2022-23 Season

If an athlete sustains an injury or falls ill while participating in team travel, the athlete's parent (or guardian) will be notified as soon as possible, using the contact information provided to the program.

When an injury or illness precludes program participation and necessitates additional and/or ongoing care, the parent (or another designated adult) is responsible for overseeing the athlete's recovery onsite within 48 hours of notification. The injured and/or ill athlete may require additional medical care, ongoing isolation (such as during an active case of COVID-19), or a change in travel plans. In all such cases, the parent (or another designated adult) is expected to travel to the athlete and to oversee the athlete's care.

We strongly recommend that athletes who travel in a team van or share lodging accommodations on a team trip:

- Wear a mask while traveling in airports and on airplanes to help reduce the overall risk of exposure to our teams; and
- Be up-to-date on vaccinations; or
- Take a COVID antigen within 24-hours of travel.
